The New Zealand Association of Artist Doctors (NZAAD) celebrated its 25th anniversary with 'A Night at the Proms' at the Aurora Centre in Christchurch on 4 October.

More than 600 attendees enjoyed the programme, which included musical performances ranging from choir and rock to jazz and orchestra as well as traditional Indian dance, poetry reading and an excerpt from the Musical Students' Revue.

MAS Member Tim Wilkinson of the New Zealand Doctors Orchestra says, "The show was a celebration of the diverse talent among doctors in New Zealand that conveyed a sense of the fun that we've had over the years. And it's certainly a great way to build cohesion within the health professions and health service in the region."
